Shoreline man held in burglary

BY ED LEPOMA

A Shoreline Park man is being held in Hancock County jail on charges he broke into the office at the D&K Quick stop, and took an undisclosed amount of cash.

Hancock County Sheriff's Department Investigator Philip Pavolini said the theft at the popular convenience store at state Hwy. 603 and the Kiln-Waveland Cutoff Road was resolved in a matter of hours following the questioning of employees.

Arrested was Brian McIntosh, 26, of 4280 Mediterranean

Street. Pavolini said based on information from an informant, the Sheriff's Department obtained a warrant to search McIntosh's house and he was arrested at home without incident. McIntosh had been employed at the store and was recently fired, Pavolini said. A large sum of money in bills and rolled coins was found in the home, along with some checks and food stamps. He said McIntosh was out on bond on six counts of burglary in Harrison County.

Supers set marina rules

BY ED LEPOMA

Hancock County's Board of Supervisors last Monday approved the charge for slip fees at the new Bayou Caddy Marina, and adopted the rules and regulations for fisherman docking at the new facility.

The Echo visited the marina on Thursday, and Harbor Master Oliver Sahuque reports that all 21 slips are rented, although only two boats were actually docked at the wharves.

"They're all out shrimping," said Sahuque.

The new 6.8 acre marina at the foot of Pleasure Street off Lakeshore Road will be open 24 hours, and Sahuque said the Hancock County Sheriff's Department has been asked to make frequent checks, especially at night, to prevent any vandalism. No vandalism has been reported since the facility opened May 18, he said.

The marina initially was built to accommodate commercial boats, and names of those who were leased slips were picked at random out of a hat from those who applied before the facility was opened.

Sahuque said commercial fishermen are charged a monthly rental fee of $2 per linear foot, plus $15 a month for electricity and water hookups.

"The average length of the boats is about 50 feet," said Sahuque. "But we have some that are 30 and some that are 60 feet." Boats dock back-to-back.

Sahuque said the revenue from the 1,120 linear feet of dock space that is available at the slips on the east and west sides of the marina will bring in a monthly total of $2,200.

He said the utility hookups are provided at a nominal fee for the convenience of the fishermen, but should they hook up on a 24 hour basis or use excessive amounts of water and electricity, they will be charged Coast Electric rates and additional charges for water.

Although there is still no sign at the entrance to the marina off Lakeshore Road, Sahuque said one is being prepared. There are two port-o-lets on the grounds for the convenience of recreational and commercial

Moran raises concern about Kiln library

BY ED LEPOMA

Hancock County supervisors are withholding a second payment to the contractor building the new Kiln Library off Hwy. 603.

Concern over the progress of the new 10,000-square-foot facility was raised at Monday's Board of Supervisors meeting, and since then there has been conversation between the library's design architect and officials with Beacon Contractors, Inc., of Biloxi.

At Monday's meeting, Library System director Prima Plaque and business manager Linda McKay came before supervisors on another matter, and Board President Philip Moran expressed concerns.

Moran said he passes the library almost every day, and he seldom has seen a full work crew on the site.

"It's impossible that building is going to be ready by August 1st," said Moran.

Moran got approval from the Board to have county attorney Gerald Gex draft a letter to the contractor, advising the firm of the board's concern, and spelling out the ramifications involved in the event the building goes way past the deadline for completion.

Later, Plaque told the Echo that she and the library's Board of Trustees, "don't have a problem with the progress at this point."

But, design architect Gary Dunn later told the Echo that he had recommended withholding a second payment to Beacon, and the firm's officials are scheduled to meet next Tuesday with library trustees to discuss the situation.

Dunn said Beacon had submitted a request for an initial payment of $45,096 on May 7, and after he checked on the progress of the building he recommended that supervisors submitted another invoice for a second payment of $62,612, and Dunn said based on the progress at the scene, he recommended the payment be withheld.

"The supervisor that's supposed to be on site had no hours assigned to the job," said Dunn.

Dunn said he realized there has been some rainy days when crews could not work, but he said Beacon has never asked for an extension on the completion time. The contract calls for completion of the library by July 4.

The 12.2 acre site for the new library is just a short distance north of the present Kiln facility, and construction on the $1.2 million library began last October.

"It's impossible that building is going to be ready by August 1st."

pay the first invoice. The firm was paid the amount requested on June 7.

So far, the slab is poured, and the metal framing has gone up, but there is still no roof on the facility.

Dunn said on June 8, Beacon

Weighing harvest

The brown shrimp season, which opened in Mississippi and Alabama coastal waters last Wednesday, is getting mixed reviews. At the Pass Christian Harbor, dealer Jerry Forte was helping to unload the bounty, and said shrimp are mostly running 50 to 60 a pound, but some have ranged 31-35 a pound. Others in the harbor complained that the shrimp were mostly small. (Echo staff photo by Ed Lepoma)

Police still mum

BY ED LEPOMA

The grief-stricken and sometimes sobbing co-owner of the Kajun Kitchen restaurant held a news conference Thursday in the eatery where a little more than 24 hours before his foster son and another employee were found shot to death.

Outside, a marquee with a black ribbon hanging along its left side, announced that the restaurant was "closed in memory of Kevin and Kenny."

Inside the restaurant, friends and employees sat around tables, and remained silent as Curtis Fouquet began telling his side of the story to the media while he clutched a framed picture of the two victims and dabbed at tears swelling in his eyes and running down his face.

Waveland Mayor Tommy

Longo was also on hand to lend support to Fouquet.

Fouquet, 45, said he wanted to set the record straight, and labeled Otis J. Lege of Waveland "the man who took the coward way out and killed himself" after committing the double murder.

Although Waveland police still remain mum, and the investigation is continuing, Fouquet said there was no doubt in his mind that Lege shot "at close-blank range" his foster son, Kevin E. Odegaard, 35, and co-owner Kenneth E. Chrisman, 39, both of Bay St. Louis.

Investigating Coroner Dr. Paul McGarry reported Odegaard had been shot twice and Chrisman, three times.

A waitress reporting to work at the restaurant around 9:40 a.m. Tuesday found the victims lying just inside the glass front door, quickly called 911, then ran out of the restaurant screaming.

According to records, at 11:07 a.m., Waveland Police responded to a residence at 708 Timbalier Street and found Lege, 63, of Waveland dead in a shed from a self-inflicted gunshot wound to the head.

"He took the coward way out," said Fouquet. "He went in the shed so there would be no blood in the house. I had blood in my restaurant. These boys innocent blood."

Fouquet said his connection to Lege goes back several years when he owned two restaurants on the west bank of New Orleans, and he often use him for painting and repair work.

Best Friends

Kenny Chrisman (left) and Kevin Odegaard, who were found shot to death in the Kajun Kitchen restaurant in Waveland Wednesday were "best friends and like brothers," who did everything together, according to relatives and friends of the victims.

GCRL receives grant

The University of Southern Mississippi has been awarded $3.2 million for construction of marine science facilities at Gulf Coast Research Laboratory and Cedar Point locations in Ocean Springs, Sen. Trent Lott, R-Miss., announced Tuesday.

The grant, from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, is part of a $6 million award that includes $1 million for improvement of the Gulf Coast Research Laboratory and $5 million to enhance marine shrimp farming research and development facilities of GCRL and four other members of the U.S. Marine Shrimp Farming Consortium.

The $5 million shrimp-farming award will be shared by GCRL and its consortium partners, Oceanic Institute of Hawaii, the Texas A&M Agriculture Experiment Station, the University of Arizona and the Waddell Mariculture Center of the South Carolina Department of Natural Resources.

At $2.2 million, the GCRL portion of the shrimp-farming award will help launch the USM Institute's new center at Cedar Point here for investigation of health issues related to marine animals and ecosystems. The shrimp mariculture program at GCRL has laid a foundation in scientific expertise and personnel for the center. Its research and development are solving problems of viruses that are not harmful to humans but can devastate a shrimp farmer's cash crop in days.

The $2.2 million will support construction of a shrimp maturation building, a prototype biosecure shrimp production facility, a shrimp hatchery building, a wet laboratory and a building to house offices and dry laboratories.

Major construction items for the existing GCRL location on Halstead Road are renovation of the dormitory and visiting faculty residence facilities, construction of an aquatic experimental laboratory and upgrade of the communications capabilities of the campus.

GCRL and Cedar Point are part of the USM Institute of Marine Sciences.

Pier vandalism needs to stop

County and city leaders provide fishing and recreation piers for the use of the public.

Then comes along an "idiot" or two, who have nothing better to do than vandalize the lights. They should probably be strapped in a white jacket and housed in some state-run institution.

Several of the lights on the Dunbar Avenue pier, which were just completed a few months ago, have already been vandalized, while the Bay St. Louis Ulman Avenue pier, in its second phase of construction, has already had some lights vandalized.

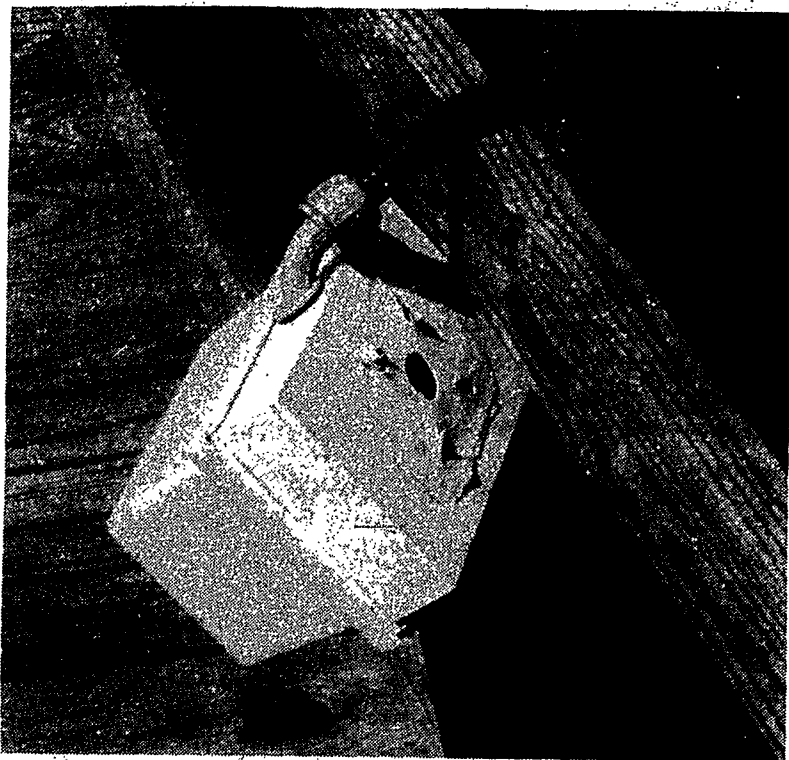

Many folks like to walk out on the piers at night to enjoy the breezes, while others like to fish at night when it is cool.

There are some very good reasons for the lights on the piers.

If you witness someone destroying county or city piers (you and I pay for them), you need to call law enforcement.

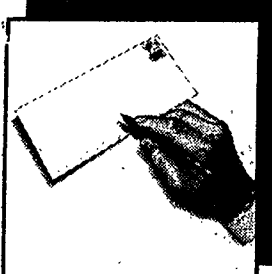

The Bay St. Louis Police Department's number is 467-9221; and the Hancock County Sheriff's Office's number is 467-5101.

It is plain and simple, the "idiots" responsible need to be nabbed and disposed of in the proper institution.

Lights vandalized

Hancock County Supervisor Lisa Cowand has asked Bay police to beef up patrols at the Dunbar Pier in Cedar Point. The refurbished pier was recently lighted at a cost of $5,000, and Cowand said vandals have already tried to pull two of the lights away from boltings on the pier. (Echo staff photo by Ed Lepoma)

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Reject all tobacco!

Hi kids:

If you're in grades K-3, I'll be coming to your school next year to talk to you about the dangers of tobacco. I already met some of your teachers.

But, this summer I'm bored, and I want to meet some new kids before school starts.

So, I'm coming to the Gulf-side Assembly Summer Program, Beach Boulevard in Waveland on Tuesday, June 16 at 1 p.m. and I'm bringing some of my friends, the Ratpack (they like to sing and dance) and some other friends, too!

I hope you can come and meet us.

If you have any questions, call Miss Pat at 467-5456, PATH, your Partners Against Tobacco in Hancock County.

"CUEVAS" QUOTES

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Good news came this week for the Hancock County Water and Sewer District. The District landed a $503,800 loan in addition to an accompanying federal grant of $1,406,000 to continue construction of the sewer system for remaining areas of Shoreline Park.

It is also possible other areas bordering Shoreline Park will be included, such as Garden Isles Subdivision.

It was not too many years ago when efforts began in Hancock County to address the lack of a sewerage system in Shoreline Park and adjoining, low-lying, food-prone areas.

It always amazes me when the 'right' people get behind a project and keep pushing so no roadblocks get in the way.

It took some time for the sewerage projects to begin and the cleaner canals and bayous are evidence that they are working.

I know there are lots of folks who feel they should take credit for the sewer extensions and that is good, as the most important issue is the fact that we are moving forward.

Now that the momentum is going, we really need to continue until every section of the county has sewerage service.

Remember, it is our environment and we all need to be concerned and continue to support the sewerage extensions.

Hats off to everyone for their efforts, as this will make a positive difference in the years to come.

There will be a special blood drawing on Tuesday, June 15, from 1 to 7 p.m. for Hannah Harris, a bone cancer patient, daughter of Debbie and Paul Harris of Kiln.

The Blood-Mobile of the Blood Center of Louisiana will be parked next to Whitney Bank's Diamondhead Branch towards the Diamondhead Fire Department.

Mrs. Harris is an employee of the Diamondhead Whitney.

Hannah Harris is a patient at Tulane Medical Center in New Orleans.

Anyone in good health, at least 17 years of age, weighing a minimum of 110 pounds, can donate blood. There is no age limit.

Longtime friend Cindy Vernon, Whitney branch manager, said she is seeking a goal of 50 units of blood at the special drawing.

I am hoping they will exceed the 50 units, as it can greatly help Hannah during her ordeal.

SCHOOLS

Q Has the notice of tax increase for a school district required under Section 27-39-207 been changed?

A Yes. Section 27-39-207 was amended by HB 614, 1999 Regular Session, effective April 15, 1999.

Q May a state-supported institution of higher learning or a public community or junior college create a municipal airport authority?

A Yes. HB 1447, 1999 Regular Session, effective July 1, 1999.

Q May a school district purchase food items and other refreshments for in-service training meetings?

A No, there is no statutory authority for the purchase of food for in-service training meetings held by the school district.

However, guidance rendered in an Attorney General's Opinion to Mabius dated March 4, 1985, states that "school district in an effort to achieve a particular goal or perform a particular function which has been imposed upon them by legislative enactments may lawfully purchase coffee, coffee supplies and soft drinks to be consumed by the participants in a meeting, seminar, workshop or similar event provided the proper responsible officer or governing entity makes the determination consistent with the facts that the activity in question is reasonable, related and incident to said goal or function."

State Treasurer warns about two soliciting companies

State Treasurer Marshall Bennett this week cautioned Mississippians about two out-of-state companies soliciting business in the state.

The companies, "Unclaimed Assets" and "National Assets Recovery," have been sending residents of Mississippi postcards offering "instructions" and a "form" for them to use in finding unclaimed property that may belong to them.

The return address on the "Unclaimed Assets" post card is from Boca Raton, Fla., and the return address on the "National Assets Recovery" post card is from Corpus Christi, Texas.

Both post cards bear zip code 29730, which is located in Rock Hill, S.C.

"I believe this is misleading and, I have asked the Consumer Protection Division of the Attorney General's office to investigate," Bennett said.

This information (for which the companies charge a $10 and $14.98 fee) is available free from the Treasury Department. "It is not necessary for Mississippians to pay an out-of-state company for this form," said Bennett.

For a fee, this company will send the purchaser a "blank master form" on which the individual lists their name, address, social security number and other personal information. On the back of the sample form is printed a list of 52 unclaimed property offices in various governmental agencies with instructions to mail the completed sheet to the respective state.

The post card suggests that the individuals may have unclaimed property. "None of the individuals who have contacted our office have had any money in the fund," said Treasurer Bennett.

Bennett noted that the State of Mississippi maintains all unclaimed property and has returned more than $15 million to rightful owners.

"We are in the business of serving the people of Mississippi and desire for no one to spend their hard earned money needlessly," he added.

Citizens may search the Unclaimed Property list for names on the Internet at www.treasury.state.ms.us.

All active unclaimed property funds of $100 and over are listed on the web site by the owner's last name.

Those accessing the website may also print the forms necessary to file their claim. The web site provides a link to other states unclaimed property divisions.

Mail inquiries to Treasury Department, Unclaimed Property Division, P.O. Box 138, Jackson, MS 39205 or call (601) 359-3600.

Veterans funeral honors detailed in plan

The Secretary of Defense and the Secretary of Veterans Affairs, with participation from Veterans Service Organizations and others, recently convened a conference over several months to determine how the requirements of the Strom Thurmond National Defense Authorization Act would be implemented.

The Department of Defense announced its plan for implementing the requirements of Public Law 105-261 on April 21, 1999.

Section 567 of the Act for Fiscal Year 1999 (Public Law 105-261) directs specific actions to address the growing national concern for the availability of military funeral honors for America's veterans.

The Act requires that the Department of Defense provide an honor guard detail consisting of at least three persons and have the capability to play a recorded or live version of Taps for the funeral of any veteran that occurs after Dec. 31, 1999. The Act does not require that these three individuals be uniformed military personnel.

Based upon extensive and collaborative examination of the veterans' funeral honors, the Department of Defense plan would clarify expectations and it would ensure a military presence at each funeral ceremony.

It would do so by defining the military funeral honors benefits, improving information access and facilitating the requests.

The proposed plan consists of the following:

1. Beginning on Jan. 1, 2000, all active duty members, retirees, veterans (as defined by title 38, United States code, section 101(2) including 38 Code of Federal Regulation, Section 3.7) and members and former members of the Selected Reserve will be eligible for Military Funeral Honors.

2. A toll-free number will be available to request Military Burial Honors. A web site will also be available to assist funeral directors, veterans and families in obtaining funeral honors and registering those

Gas company offers hurricane guidelines

During the summer months, hurricane preparedness is a priority for residents along the Gulf Coast. With the 1999 hurricane season approaching, we once again turn our attention to preparing our homes and families for the possibility of an approaching storm.

As we make plans to purchase emergency supplies, secure our possessions, and possibly evacuate, don't forget to give some thought to your home's propane service.

Blossman Gas, Inc. offers the following guidelines for people whose homes or businesses are in the path of a hurricane.

Before the hurricane strikes:

- Make sure you have an ample supply of propane gas prior to a hurricane watch status.
- Fill all portable grill cylinders. Electric power and natural gas lines may be out for days or weeks following a storm.

Your grill and range may be your only available cooking sources. Do not operate or store appliances intended for outdoor use inside your home or business.

If your home of business lies in a flood-prone area, secure your propane tank to a sturdy structure to prevent the possibility of the tank floating away.

People in evacuation areas should turn off the propane tank prior to evacuating the property by shutting off the service valve in a clockwise direction.

After the hurricane:

If you have turned off your propane tank before the storm, you must have the tank turned back on by a qualified technician, who will check the system for leaks or other possible storm-related problems.

In areas where the storm has caused flooding, all propane tanks, vehicles or household appliances whose controls have been under water must be inspected by a qualified technician before they can be placed back into service. Controls that have been under water must be replaced. In these cases, you must turn off the service on the propane tank until the equipment has been serviced.

Salt water can be damaging to equipment, although the damage is not apparent. Corrosion of the controls which can cause blockage to safety devices built into the system is the primary concern. Water, dirt, or debris may also have entered the regulator through the vent.

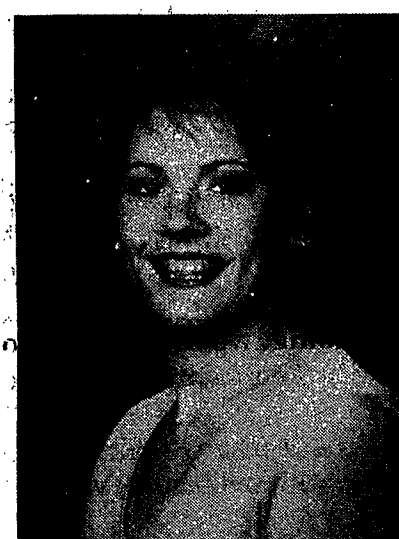

Technicians can also determine whether dents to the tank or equipment, caused by such things as floating debris, are serious enough to warrant equipment replacement.

In case you detect the odor of gas following a storm, you should shut off the gas service valve on the outside tank. Extinguish all smoking materials, and open flames. Exit the building immediately. Do not touch electrical switches, light matches, or use the phone. Contact Blossman Gas or the fire department from a neighbor's home. Do not re-enter the building until an inspection has been completed.

Before re-entering a building following a significant gas leak, the building should be checked for accumulated gas levels.

By following these safety guidelines, you can help secure the safety of your family before and after any hurricane.

Ocean Springs TB test results released

Preliminary results from TB testing of 270 students and faculty last week at Ocean Springs High School indicate that only five -- or two percent -- had positive skin test reactions.

To precisely predict what the reactor rate should be in this population is not possible, but the Health Department strongly urges students who have not completed the testing process to do so.

The testing was prompted by confirmation of an active case of TB in a student at the school. A positive skin test is an indication that the individual has been exposed to TB at some time in his or her life and has been infected by the TB germ.

The positive test does not mean a person has tuberculosis disease. The person might or might not develop the disease.

Additional tests are necessary to determine if the person has active disease. If the person does not have active disease, medication is available to help prevent it.

People with TB infection and without disease cannot spread TB to others. The highest risk for developing disease is within the first two years of infection.

No additional active cases of the disease have been identified. Almost all students and faculty who were in the classroom with the case have been tested. Further testing is still being completed on friends who did not have class with the student and on the student's close contacts outside of the school.

Individuals who were notified that they should be tested and who have not reported to the local health department for testing should do so immediately.

Individuals who might not have been notified but believe they were exposed should also be tested.

The tuberculin skin test depends on the body's immune response to exposure to TB. The body can take two to 10 weeks after infection with TB to mount a measurable response.

All individuals tested because of potential exposure at Ocean Springs High School will likely be retested when school resumes in August.

When all of the current testing is completed, final decisions about the likelihood of transmission and any need for additional testing can be made.

3. Upon request of the family of an eligible beneficiary, the military service will render minimum funeral honors consisting of the ceremonial folding and presentation of the American flag and the playing of Taps. In fulfilling this mission, both active and reserve forces may be sued.

Navy, USM scientists to team up with students

Navy scientists and University of Southern Mississippi marine educators will team up with a select group of high school seniors during a special camp starting Monday.

The J. L. Scott Marine Education Center and Aquarium will offer marine science instruction for the 1999 Secretary of the Navy Engineering and Science Residential Program, June 14-July 23, hosted by the Naval Meteorology and Oceanography Command at Stennis Space Center.

USM's Center of Higher Learning at Stennis serves as the lead agency for the program for high school seniors going into the 1999-2000 school year. In addition to the marine education center, other participants are the Naval Oceanographic Office and the Naval Research Laboratory.

Students are selected on the basis of grades, transcripts, essays, extracurricular accomplishments and written recommendations. During the summer camp, students will be paired to work with Navy scientists and will join J. L. Scott marine educators approximately two days a week for field and laboratory experiences in the marine sciences.

"This is the second year of our involvement in the program," Dr. Allen Tubbs, assistant administrator of the Marine Education Center, said. "Students will be immersed in the examination of estuarine and coastal habitats."

Martinez wins WIBA championship at Magic Friday

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II
The fight night at Casino Magic in Bay St. Louis was a knockout, literally. The first six fights at the casino entertainment complex ended in knockouts and the last fight of the evening went the distance for the sellout crowd of 1800 fans.

The main event of the night was an eight round cruiserweight fight between Dominic "Hurricane" Carter and Tracy Barrios.

Carter and Barrios have experienced bad blood between themselves for about two years. Tonight, the bad blood was settled.

It had been rumored that the two fighters engaged in a brawl of their own earlier in the day; however, the fight in the ring belonged to Carter.

In the third round, Carter received two warnings from referee Elmo Adolph. But, in the fifth round Carter knocked down Barrios with a hard right. Then, at the 1:05 mark of the same round Carter was credited with a TKO over Barrios as Adolph stopped the fight.

Carter improved his record to 27-8, 15 KOs. Barrios dropped to 12-9.

The co-feature of the night was a super middleweight bout between Will "Kidfire" McIntyre and Stacy "Goodnight" Goodson.

The fight started slow with both fighters trying to feel each other out.

However, in the second round McIntyre stung Goodson on the eye with a jab.

In the fourth round, McIntyre continued to attack the injured eye and eventually won a TKO over Goodson at the 2:26 mark.

McIntyre improved to 21-7, 8 KOs while Goodson dropped to 22-12.

The seventh and final fight of the evening was a women's world title fight.

Snowdene Blakney of Austin, Texas, put her IBA Lightweight Championship of the World title belt on the line against Jeanne "Boom Boom" Martinez of Slidell.

The fight went the ten round distance with each fighter connecting on their own share of punches.

Martinez went down twice in the fight; however, she was able to win the unanimous decision over Blakney and claim the WIBA world lightweight title. Martinez improved to 8-3-1 while Blakney fell to 7-2.

In other action, Clifford "Black Rhino" Etienne needed only 1:16 of the first round to dispose of Eric Jackson.

Etienne knocked Jackson unconscious with a right hook. It took a medical team a little over five minutes to get Jackson seated on a stool in the ring.

Etienne improved his heavy-weight fighting record to 8-0-4 while Jackson dropped to 2-3-1.

There were two other women's bouts on the undercard.

Suzi "The All-American" Taylor improved her ring record to 5-1 when she scored a knockout over Kendra Linehart with a right hook at the :46 mark of the fifth round.

Taylor is the reigning women's IBA Middleweight Champion of the World.

Linehart fell to 3-5 with the loss.

Nina Ahlin, an Atlanta Falcons cheerleader, put her undefeated record on the line against Sarah Rama from the Philippines. Rama made her professional debut at the fight night.

Ahlin recorded a TKO at the 1:27 mark of the first round to end the debut celebration of Rama.

Ahlin improved to 3-0-1.

Joey "The Butcher Boy" Ancona started the night out with a TKO at the 2:58 mark of the first round over David Vaughn of Vancleave.

Ancona remained undefeated with win improving to 5-0, 4 KOs.

Vaughn fell to 3-9 with the loss.

Ancona is a former ISSA cruiserweight kickboxing champion of the world.

Weight training reshapes physiques

By Gary Smith

Fitness programs using free weights are highly effective in reshaping flabby bodies into firm, athletic physiques.

Weight training simply works muscle tissue to a greater extent than most other forms of exercise.

A well balanced fitness program that includes weight lifting, stretching, and cardiovascular activity quickly yields noticeable results in both upper and lower body muscle tone and appearance.

Many people have misconceptions regarding weight training. One popular myth is that lifting weights produces huge muscles like bodybuilders.

This is false.

Bodybuilding is a specialized form of weight training. Weight programs designed for general fitness do not develop large, bulky physiques.

Another fallacy is that exercising with weights reduces flexibility and athletic ability. This is entirely wrong.

Most athletes rely on weight training programs as part of their conditioning regimes. Abundant evidence exists to support the fact that people improve their ranges of flexibility, plus sharpen their coordination, from barbell and dumbbell exercises.

Misunderstanding also occurs regarding fat burning. A popular trend is to believe that fat burning can only be achieved through aerobic activities such as group classes or jogging, lasting approximately 45 minutes or longer.

This is only partially correct.

Current research demonstrates that the sustained muscle tension achieved during weight training establishes a fat burning metabolism which can last for several hours following a workout.

Aerobic activities only burn fat during the immediate sessions.

An effective introductory free weight program should consist of only a few basic exercises, focusing on large muscle groups.

The beginner should start with a very light barbell or dumbbells for 2 to 3 sets of 12 to 15 repetitions.

The exercise motion should be smooth and deliberate to achieve maximum results.

Gary Spencer Smith is a personal trainer at Pathways Personal Training in Waveland.

USM plans marching percussion summer camp

Full drum lines or individual drummers can polish their performance skills July 12-16 at the Marching Percussion Camp offered by the University of Southern Mississippi.

The camp, presented by USM's Percussion Studies Department, will feature complete drum-line instruction and individual attention.

Percussionists ages 13 and older will build stamina in long-term playing, increase ensemble awareness and learn marching fundamentals, basic line warm-ups, rudiments and cadences.

Resident campers pay $225 which includes room, board, tuition, limited accident insurance and a camp T-shirt. The fee for day campers is $172 and includes tuition, lunch, limited accident insurance and a camp T-shirt. Band directors are welcome and encouraged to attend.

The camp director is Dr. John Wooton, director of percussion studies and an assistant professor in USM's School of Music.

Guest clinicians include Marty Harley, band instructor at Brother Martin High School in New Orleans; Lalo Davila, director of percussion studies at Middle Tennessee State University; and Julie Davila, percussion specialist for John Overton High School in Nashville, Tenn.

For more information or to register, call USM's Department of Continuing Education at (601) 266-4186.

Free tip cards for anglers

Free cards that give red drum anglers specific catch and release tips are available from the BOAT/U.S. Clean Water Trust, a national non-profit education organization that provides practical environmental information for boaters and fishermen.

For anglers who tag and/or release red drum, the how-to card gives tips on reducing fish stress and injury — the primary reasons a released fish might not survive — such as using only wet hands or a wet cloth when handling fish to avoid loss of protective slime.

A wallet-sized summary of the tips and a red drum weight-length chart can be torn off from the bottom of the card for easy reference.

For information on the Red Drum Tag & Release Outreach project or to order the cards (available in bulk quantities of 50 or more), contact Jenny Pereira at 1-800-BOAT-USA or by email at jpereira@boatusa.com.

10A-THE SEA COAST ECHO-SUNDAY, JUNE 13, 1999

Good news about capital gains

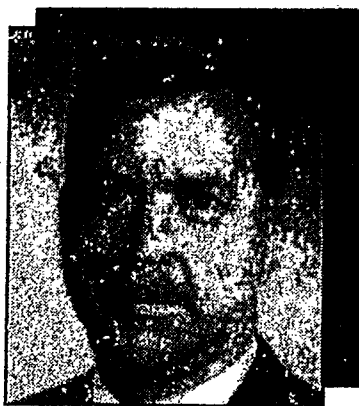

Congress recently gave investors an attractive gift by simplifying the capital gains provisions passed in 1997. In a nutshell, Congress replaced the former maximum capital gains rate of 28 percent with a maximum rate of 20 percent and made the lower rate retroactive to Jan. 1, 1998.

That means nearly all gains earned on investments held more than one year will now be taxed at a maximum rate of 20 percent. (For investors in the 15 percent tax bracket, long-term capital gains will be taxed at a rate of 10 percent.) Better yet, in a year-and-a-half, the long-term capital gains rate will drop further. Beginning in 2001, investments purchased and held more than five years will be taxed at a maximum rate of 18 percent.

Gains on investments held less than a year, on the other hand, will continue to be taxed as ordinary income, which means tax rates up to 39.6 percent. That makes a powerful case for investing for the long term.

Although stocks should never be sold simply because of changes in tax laws, lower capital gains tax rates provide an excellent opportunity to diversify your portfolio. If your portfolio has become overweighted in a single stock, or if the outlook of a stock you own has deteriorated, you may want to take advantage of the lower capital gains tax.

It's easy to control how long you hold individual stocks, but how do you control buying and selling within your mutual funds? Unfortunately, you can't. However, you can choose mutual funds that practice buy-and-hold investing. To determine how often your mutual fund buys and sells stock, check its turnover rate, which indicates how much trading occurs within the fund. The lower the turnover rate, the better. For example, a fund with a 100 percent turnover rate holds its positions an average of one year before selling. A fund with a 50 percent turnover rate holds its positions an average of two years before selling.

Your mutual fund's turnover rate can be found in its prospectus or its annual or semiannual report. Your investment professional also can provide this information.

If your mutual fund has a high turnover rate, consider moving your money into a high-quality fund that subscribes to a long-term, buy-and-hold strategy. After all, you're the one paying the price for the fund manager's short-term decisions to buy and sell. And, you may be paying as much as 39.6 percent in taxes, depending on which tax bracket you're in!

It's been said that the best gifts are those that keep giving. Congress has given investors a gift that will allow them to keep more of what they earn and pay less in taxes. Make the most of this gift, and hold your investments for the long term whenever possible.

Small business' future maybe online

By Rick Stewart
BellSouth Regional Director

Just one year ago, only five percent of small business owners considered the Internet as an important technology tool for the future of business.

Today, 65 percent of all small businesses have access to the Internet and 41 percent maintain a Web site.

However, most small businesses are hesitant about setting up an electronic storefront largely due to the belief that it is difficult, technically demanding and expensive. As a result, small businesses that don't have a Web presence are losing customers to their online rivals.

Whether businesses seek the ability to efficiently communicate with customers or sell goods and services over the Internet, the Web is essential for small businesses to gain and maintain a competitive edge.

With more than 60 million Web sites now online, it would be similar to not having your phone number in the yellow pages.

For a minimal investment in a Web presence, small business can experience profitable advantages. Some of these include:

- Establishing new profit opportunities -- Make money by finding new revenue and profit opportunities by entering any geographic market. The smallest of retail operations can now take their products to hundreds of millions of "Web surfers" worldwide.

- Managing costs -- Perform traditional business functions more cost-effectively online; without a costly warehouse. No need to house months of equipment from a supplier, when inventory can be ordered and delivered expeditiously.

- Enhancing customer service -- Build e-mail relationships with customers, and offer product support.

The Internet allows for more and quicker means of communications with customers, as well as the ability to transmit important product literature and support information instantaneously.

- Improving communications -- Give timely access to the right information, with email updates and online delivery. eliminate the "never got the envelope" or "the package never came" problems with previous information delivery. Now you are just a mouse click away for all customers.

- Staying competitive -- Don't get left behind your competitors. The Internet is not just a trend -- it is the present and the future of business communications.

Due to sky rocketing Internet sales, competition among e-commerce solution providers has heated up considerably allowing the small business owner to design a Web site at a very reasonable cost.

E-commerce solution providers, such as BellSouth and others, offer and-to-end suites of Internet for business solutions for doing business on the Internet.

We can streamline these steps for your small business and walk you through the often nerve-racking expansion to the Internet. By the end of the day, we can see to it that your company is online with a marketed Web site.

While many small business owners recognize that having Internet access and a Web presence can help them serve their customers better, obtain information more efficiently and stay competitive, they also seek a cost-effective and easy-to-implement solution to their Internet needs.

For small businesses that do not already have an Internet presence, they can contact BellSouth or another Internet solution provider that can help them integrate their Internet presence into their current business operations.

For information, access the BellSouth Small Business Services Web site at www.smlbiz.bellsouth.com.

Greer awaits rape sentence

BY ED LEPOMA

Hancock County Circuit Court Judge Kosta Vlahos is awaiting a pre-sentencing report before determining how much time Joseph "Rusty" Greer will serve following his conviction last week of capital rape of a 13-year-old female.

It took a jury of nine men and three women only 30 minutes of deliberation last Tuesday to convict Greer, 34, who was arrested in April of 1998.

The jury listened to three state witnesses and heard a taped, tearful confession given by Greer to investigators when he was arrested.

Greer was prosecuted on a charge of capital rape because the incident involved sexual intercourse with a person under 14. The victim, now 17, appeared before the jury and said the rapes occurred repeatedly beginning in May of 1995 when Greer was 30.

The victim said she did not tell anyone, but on her 16th birthday got the courage to tell her mother.

The victim's mother and a sheriff's investigator were also state witnesses, but Greer did not testify in his own defense.

He is being represented by attorneys Zach Butterworth and Richard Dymond.

Greer could face anywhere from 20 years to life in prison, and his attorneys said they will wait sentencing before deciding if they would appeal the conviction.

Shock — Restaurant owner tells story

Later, Fouquet said he hired Lege to help paint the Cajun Kitchen before he opened the restaurant near the busy intersection of U.S. Hwy. 90 and Hwy. 603. The restaurant opened about a week before Hurricane Georges struck last September, and it had developed a loyal and faithful clientele.

Fouquet said he also got other painting jobs around the area for Lege, and he considered Lege and his wife personal friends.

"He came to parties at my house, Christmas parties, my birthday party in May," said Fouquet.

Fouquet hired Lege's wife, Juanita, to join the wait staff the week the restaurant opened, and she has been employed there since. But, Fouquet said it was only recently that Lege began to threaten his life and the life of everyone who worked at the restaurant.

Fouquet said the threats increased when Juanita left Lege, took her two children out of the house and went to live with a friend about two weeks ago.

"She took a lot of verbal abuse (from Lege), and she'd tell us about it," said Fouquet. "He wanted us to fire her, but you don't fire somebody who is a good employee unless the situation is interfering with her job," said Fouquet. He said Lege threatened everyone at the restaurant. "He told us, he'd shoot us all."

Because of the increasing threats, Fouquet said Lege had been served a restraining order about two weeks ago, and Waveland police went to his house to warn him not to come near the restaurant or his wife.

Fouquet said Wednesday morning started out normally, with Kevin calling him at his home about 8 a.m. to tell me, "We're out of pasta." Fouquet and the victims shared a double in Shoreline Park, with Fou-quet living on one side and Odegaard and Chrisman on the other side, he said.

"That's what I'd do," said Fouquet. "I ran the errands and kept the books. 'Do whatever I could to help out.'"

Fouquet said Kevin called a second time to ask him to pick up cooking oil, then called him on his cell phone again as he was driving down the highway. He said he stopped at the Sav-A-Center supermarket in the shopping center just behind the restaurant, then--on an impulse--went into Wal-Mart to get another item.

Fouquet arrived at the restaurant just about the time the waitress came running out screaming, he said.

Fouquet said he adopted Odegaard as a foster son about 22 years ago, but it wasn't until 1989 that they decided to move into the area. They got jobs at the Jubilee Casino barge, Fouquet said, Odegaard as a cook, and he as the sous chef. They worked there about a year and a half, Fouquet said, then he hurt his back.

He said they befriended local realtor Joe Buccola, and Buccola convinced him and his foster son to run the Imperial Quick Stop for him, which was then located at Hwy. 603 and the Kiln-Waveland Cutoff Road.

When that closed, Fouquet said his foster son struggled at various jobs for three years, and they saved their money before deciding last September to open the Cajun Kitchen restaurant.

"I used my family savings to get the money to open. I even sold my motor home," said Fouquet.

Fouquet said he and his foster son befriended Chrisman when they lived on the West Bank of New Orleans.

Chrisman worked as a cook offshore, Fouquet said, and about a week after he opened the restaurant, Odegaard "called his best friend to come and help him."

Over the months, Fouquet said the restaurant was thriving, and he recently gave Chrisman a 20 percent interest in the business, which he and Odegaard had promised to do.

"Kenny was like family. I was like an uncle to him, and Kevin and Kenny were like brothers. You couldn't get any closer," said Fouquet.

"Now, two young lives are gone. These two boys wouldn't hurt a fly," said Fouquet. He said the victims sometimes provided coffee or food to transients who came to the restaurant's door.

Fouquet said the untimely deaths were particularly hard on him, since he lost his elderly mother only last May.

"My sole support was my son. Now, he's gone. I've lost my mother and now my son. I have nothing. I don't know what I'm going to do," said Fouquet.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete Thursday afternoon, but Fouquet said Chrisman's father, who lives in the New Orleans area, had given him permission to wake the pair "side by side" at Edmond Fahey Funeral Home in Bay St. Louis when the police department releases the bodies.

He said he planned to bury his foster son in a cemetery "next to my mother in New Orleans," and Chrisman would be laid to rest in his family's plot in the New Orleans area.

fishermen, trash cans, and a public boat launch.

Sahuque said sports fishermen will be allowed to fish and crab off the docks when the boats are out, but not when the slips are full.

He is operating from a trailer that has been rented and is placed on site.

The rules and regulations call for a "No Wake Zone" within the harbor area, and no sailing is permitted.

Fines and jail terms are provided for marina users who discharge raw sewage into the marina and for littering.

• Used oil removed from boats must be placed in proper receptacles, and hazardous and non-hazardous waste needs to be separated, with used oil filters wrapped properly to prevent leakage and placed only in receptacles provided for that purpose.

• All catwalks, wharves and piers adjacent to the berthings must be kept clean by the fishermen, and no tenant is to use his boat as permanent living quarters.

• Tenants are also forbidden to do major construction and repairs to boats berthed in the marina, but some minor interior and exterior repairs are allowed between the hours of 6 a.m. and 9 p.m. Welding is allowed on vessels by competent welders or the boat owners, following all safety procedures.

• No laundry of any type, such as wet clothes, shall be hung out to dry in public view from any boat moored in the marina.

• No unattended pets are allowed on the pier or catwalk area, and all dogs must be leashed at all times while on the ground.

• Because of nearby residences, no partying or other loud entertainment is allowed after 10 p.m.

• No vehicle shall remain parked in the harbor parking area over 36 hours without permission of the Harbor Master.

• No bicycle riding or motorized vehicles are allowed on the piers.

• No boat, boat trailer or any motorized vehicle shall be permitted to be advertised for sale on the harbor grounds.

• Cleaning of nets or creating any similar condition while the vessel is in harbor is prohibited.

• Handling of fuel in an open container or bucket transferring fuel from vessel to vessel within the harbor, or the open storage of fuel on the shore or dock is strictly prohibited.

• All vessels assigned a berth must be documented with the U.S. Coast Guard and/or registered in the state of Mississippi with the Department of Marine Resources.

• Only vessels registered with the Harbor Master will be allowed to dock in assigned rental slips, and there will be no "stacking" of vessels allowed.

• Sale of seafood product from a vessel berthed at the harbor will be allowed provided the product has been caught by the vessel. But, the unloading of seafood from vessel to vessel or from vehicle to vessel for the purpose of selling is strictly prohibited.

Each tenant is given a copy of the rules and regulations once he is assigned a lease, and the leaseholder cannot assign his spot to someone else, Sahuque said.

American Cancer Society

Assistance to victims of cancer is available through Hancock and Harrison county chapters of the American Cancer Society.

Necessary items for patients, such as dressings, ostomy and sick-room supplies are available to those in need. Equipment which may be loaned to patients includes wheelchairs, and hospital beds.

Assistance is available for transportation to qualifying hospitals.

Several rehabilitation programs are offered, including "Reach To Recovery," in which volunteers who have had mastectomies visit new breast cancer patients (with approval of physician) to assist in emotional, physical and psychological rehabilitation.

Burglary

Pavolini said a store employee reported to work about 4 a.m. and noticed that the door to the office had been ripped in half, and she called 911.

"There was no forced entry," said Pavolini. "We figured it was an inside job."

Pavolini said he and Waveland police officers, who aided in the investigation, obtained a list of employees and began questioning them.

At 7:30 p.m., Pavolini said they had a suspect and obtained the search warrant.

Assisting Pavolini were Waveland Police Lt. Kevin McIntosh, and officers C.J. Lick and Rene Lick. Waveland's drug dog, Arno, was also used in the search.

Special blood drawing set for Hannah Harris

The Diamondhead branch of Whitney National Bank of Mississippi will host a blood drive to benefit bone cancer patient Hannah Harris, daughter of Debbie and Paul Harris of Kiln on Tuesday, June 15, 1-7 p.m.

Debbie Harris is an employee of the Diamondhead branch of Whitney.

The blood drive will be conducted by the Blood Center of Louisiana, where Hannah is a patient at Tulane Medical Center in New Orleans.

The blood mobile will be located next to Whitney Bank, toward the Diamondhead Fire Department.

A goal of 50 pints has been set for the drive, with coordinators hoping to exceed this amount through the generosity of the community.

Anyone who is in good health, at least 17 years of age, weighing a minimum of 110 pounds can donate blood. There is no upper age limit.

"Please remember to eat a meal before your blood donation and bring a buddy to donate the gift of life," said Cindy Vernon, branch manager.

For information or to pre-register to donate, contact the Diamondhead branch of Whitney at 463-2120.

Bone densitometers aid diagnosis of osteoporosis

Osteoporosis, a disease that plagues a large portion of the American female population over age 50, is preventable and treatable.

Characterized by low bone mass and microarchitecture deterioration of skeletal bone tissue, osteoporosis causes a rise in the person's susceptibility to bone fracture.

"Osteoporosis is reversible," said Internal Medicine Specialist Irene Koskan, M.D. "However, it's better to treat it early than once it's already occurred."

Fractures are the single greatest risk associated with osteoporosis.

Women have four times the risk of developing osteoporosis than men.

"Men normally have a higher bone density than women," Koskan said.

It is estimated that a woman at age 50 has a 40 percent chance of experiencing a fracture related to lower bone mass during her lifetime, and half of all individuals who suffer hip fractures will be permanently disabled.

Twenty percent of all persons suffering hip fractures will require long term care, and the mortality rate within the first year of a hip fracture is estimated to be 24 percent.

Each year, the national cost of hip fractures is $13.8 billion, and as the average age of the American population rises over the next 30 years due to aging of the baby boomers, the cost related to low bone mass could double unless comprehensive prevention and treatment plans are initiated.

Diagnosis of osteoporosis is made by monitoring bone mass, or bone mineral density. Standard x-rays can show bone loss, but only when the loss exceeds 30 percent.

There are several types of bone densitometers. The simple and more portable equipment can test fingers, wrists and ankles. Results are accurate; however, these studies have not been approved for follow-up treatment.

Central bone densitometers, which measure the hips and spine are very sensitive and accurate and are used to follow treatment of osteopenic or osteoporosis.

While primarily a female problem, osteoporosis can occur in men. Bone densitometers can measure bone loss in men; however, all standards have been formulated based on the bone density of young Caucasian women.

Medicare and most insurance will pay for a bone density test every two years in postmenopausal females and men with risk factors, according to Koskan.

Treatment for osteoporosis includes increased calcium intake to help prevent further bone loss. Dairy products and dark green vegetables, such as spinach, collards and broccoli, are a good source of dietary calcium.

If unable to tolerate these foods, a calcium supplement may be taken.

Weight bearing exercise, such as walking, also helps strengthen bones.

Medications are also available as a form of treatment.

There are a variety of prescription medications on the market for both prevention and treatment of osteoporosis. Consult your healthcare provider about which is the best choice for you.

Osteoporosis Risk Factors:

Age (post-menopausal females), Caucasian or Asian race, people who are thin or have a small build, history of previous fractures, family history of osteoporosis, early menopause (before age 45), smoking, alcohol abuse, inactive lifestyle and certain medications.

Crisis line needs Hancock volunteers

Some 203 women, including 69 children, were raped in the six southern counties of Mississippi in 1998.

From January through April of this year, 87 rapes have been reported, which indicates a significant increase, according to Peggy Cuevas, sexual assault specialist at the Gulf Coast Women's Center for Nonviolence.

"Rape is one of the most traumatic crimes that an individual can suffer," said Sandy Danzey, volunteer coordinator for the GCW-CFN. "This crime is one that lingers long after the actual incident. Sometimes it takes years and much counseling for a person to cope with being raped."

The Gulf Coast Women's Center volunteers and staff are on call 24 hours a day to support these victims. Volunteers staff the sexual assault crisis line from 5 p.m. until 8 a.m. daily and all holidays.

"Volunteers are the most crucial element in the operation of the crisis line," said Cuevas. "Without dedicated volunteers, the center would not be able to offer this valuable service to the victims of sexual assault."

"Our greatest need at this time is for more volunteers in Jackson and Hancock counties," said Danzey. "But willing workers are always needed in all counties."

To join this caring crisis team, Coast women may contact Danzey at the GCW-CFN at 228-436-3809.

Volunteers are required to staff the hot line about every four to six weeks. Staff backup is always available.

"Our volunteers are very special people to us. They help us make the Coast aware of the growing crime of sexual assault and the need for community support for the Gulf Coast Women's Center for Nonviolence and its much-needed services," said Danzey, who started as a crisis line volunteer prior to joining the center's staff full time.

"Through my years of volunteering for several Coast organizations, the sexual assault crisis line is one where I felt most needed," Danzey continued. "The staff of the Gulf Coast Women's Center was always there for me when I needed their help and always made me feel a part of the center. That's how I want our new and current volunteers to feel."

Jane Amos knew that she had to lose a lot of weight to find herself again. But more than that, to save her life. Like so many, she tried countless diets and medications. Their failure led to her depression and her fear of heart attack and stroke. Then Jane discovered the "Live Light" Surgical Weight Loss Program at Gulf Coast Medical Center. As part of the Weight Management Center, "Live Light" has helped Jane live a more active life. And if you ask us, it's a lifestyle that fits her quite nicely.

This testimonial reflects the results achieved by this patient. As each case is different and must be independently evaluated and managed, weight loss will vary.

Congratulations, you have fought drought and won.

Slugs and snails will break your heart while they are munching your hostas and other garden yummys. If the traditional beer traps don't satisfy you, try these other methods.

1. Slugs and snails don't like rough surfaces. Surround your plants with sandpaper collars (cut a sit and a small hole in a square or disc). Crushed oyster shells, available at seed stores, also work. The oyster shells will need to be replenished, but provide nutrients while thwarting those pesky slimes.

2. Non-toxic baits can also be used. These baits won't kill the slugs, so you will have to dispatch them yourself. This is easier if you are in a vengeful frame of mind. Put down a flagstone or large piece of wood, or use a hollowed out fruit rind such as cantaloupe or grapefruit. Leave it out overnight, and creatures will gather. Pluck them off with chopsticks and drown them in soapy water, or run the rinds and slugs through your garbage disposal.

Veglia completes mosaic at Center

Families visiting the Lynn Meadows Discovery Center donned goggles and used pliers to design mosaic patterns depicting celestial bodies. Elizabeth Veglia conducted these workshops as part of a grant funded by the Mississippi Arts Commission.

"My purpose in this project is to involve the community in creating a mosaic piece that is a permanent art form," said Veglia. Veglia's other community mosaic works include Hancock County Main Library Mosaic Mural in Bay St. Louis; Harbor Square Park Mosaic Mural and St. John Parish Hall Mosaic Mural, both in Gulfport.

The community projects help people learn about the mosaic process, and are part of the evolution and execution of a work of art.

The mosaic encircles an elliptical sun dial in the organic garden at the Lynn Meadows Discovery Center.

"We felt the children and families who participated in the mosaic," said Mary Cordray, associate director of the Discovery Center, "would be thrilled to see their 'art work' during return visits."

The Lynn Meadows Discovery Center offers six indoor exhibits, a museum store, a science lab and artist studio.

Located on six acres, the museum has outdoor exhibits which include a tree house village, a Navy submarine, an organic garden and a performing pavilion.

In addition, different activities and workshops are planned each weekend.

The next keynote event is a Swing Dance for families on July 3 with lessons available on Wednesdays for four weeks prior to the dance.

For information on the Lynn Meadows Discovery Center, weekend activities and the Swing Dance, call 897-6039.

Finishing touches

Elizabeth Veglia puts the finishing touches on a sun dial mosaic at the Lynn Meadows Discovery Center in Gulfport.

Ancient creatures of the deep featured at Mississippi Petrified Forest

The Mississippi Petrified Forest Museum in Flora, announces, for the first time in the United States, a new and unique display. "Petrified Jaws" and Other Creatures of the Deep, which is now open to the public free of charge.

A featured specimen of this new display is a huge fossil shark jaw, complete with several sets of teeth. It measures large enough for a small child to stand inside, about four feet by three and three-quarters feet. The opening of the mouth, from jaw to jaw, measures 32 inches.

This most unusual specimen was found recently in Morocco, an area that has been discovering a multitude of fossils in the Sahara Desert for some time.

This great desert was once a huge sea, about 50 million years ago. The specimens that have been found so far indicate that this ancient sea was a thriving area that supported a large variety of undersea life.

There have been fantastic specimens found here of ammonites and baculites, ancestors of the modern chambered nautilus and the squid.

Unusual Trilobites, large bug-like form of sea bottom dwellers have been found in abundance. The fossils that cause the most comment and excitement are the huge shark teeth, which belonged to a number of different sharp species, typical of 50 million years ago.

"Petrified Jaws" and Other Creatures of the Deep will be open to the public, free of charge, and will be on continuous display until the end of October, after which the huge shark jaw will be sent on to Clemson University where it will be placed on permanent display.

A new wing of the Earth Science Museum at the Mississippi Petrified Forest has been opened to house this feature exhibit as well as future displays now being planned.

The Petrified Forest is open seven days a week, 9 a.m.-6 p.m. every day during the summer.

For information, contact the Mississippi Petrified Forest at (601) 879-8189.

REFLECTIONS ON LIFE

By Father Jerome
LeDoux, SVD

Born without a human father, Anakin Skywalker, who was to mature into ominous Darth Vader, is the Chosen One sung of by the prophets, and is endowed with special powers enabling him to bring balance to the Force.

Apparently, filmmaker George Lucas attended Bible study before embarking on his intergalactic cruise into the future. No doubt, he figures that a kiss from Old Testament prophets and the Christmas story would make his tale legitimate.

So, untold millions, who fall asleep or daydream during the reading of the prophets and the Christmas story, came so alive during the weeks leading up to the latest "Star Wars" film that they readily sacrificed time, money and comfort.

Some lied their way into sickness to avoid going to work. Thus, they were free to view the movie's first showing. Some were willing to pay outrageous prices for scalped tickets. Others camped out in ticket lines formed days in advance.

Months arunning, "the Phantom Menace" was the beginning and end of many conversations for handfuls of millions of people who could not wait for the blessed day of inaugural showings. What were they hungering after?

Special effects, however spectacular, could not possibly be the main ingredient of their curiosity, for numerous movies nowadays have incredible effects.

The sheer science fiction aspect of the film, moving from the initial "Star Wars" to the "Empire Strikes Back" and on to the "Return of the Jedi" likewise would not be compelling enough of itself to mesmerize so many millions.

Several elements in the film obviously hit nerve centers and the deepest recesses of the human psyche, at least in those people who have not been touched there already by something or someone else. It is the Unknown God lurking here?

"You Athenians, says Paul, 'I see that in every respect you are very religious. For, as I walked around looking carefully at your shrines, I even discovered an altar inscribed, 'To the Unknown God.' What, therefore, you unknowingly worship, I proclaim to you" (Acts 17:22-23).

Clearly, unbeknown to themselves, millions of people are in hot pursuit of the Unknown God because they have paid little or no attention over the years to the Bible readings, the teachings in church, and the traditions of their elders.

They are hungering, thirsting, slobbering after someone they inherently know can and will fill the uncomfortable vacuum deep within their being and feeling. As the Athenians did, they fail to recognize the real thing, the Unknown God.

The "WORD" for the Week

Dennis J. Prutow, Box 303, Sterling, KS 67579

Promises, promises

What is the real essence of marriage? First of all, you should not equate marriage with sexual relations. On one side, the Bible condemns all sexual relations outside of marriage as sin.

On the other side, God blesses the honeymoon union as holy. Why? Because the couple is already married. Marriage is not the same as sexual relations. Marriage authorizes sexual relations.

What then is marriage? Speaking to a husband, God says of his wife, "She is your companion and your wife by covenant" (Malachi 2:14). In other words, marriage is a covenant. Not only so, in marriage you make a covenant.

You take vows before God. You make promises. You say, "I do promise and covenant before God and these witnesses to be your loving husband or wife in sickness and in health, in plenty and in want, in joy and in sorrow, as long as we both shall live."

Yes, when you married, you promised to be companion to your husband or wife, as long as you both should live. You promised to be by his or her side so that he or she would never be lonely, never be without encouragement, never be without help, never be without someone to talk to.

A lot of people are breaking their promises these days. How about you? Are you keeping your marriage promises?

We all hunger for God

If they had a clue as to why they are running head over heels in hot pursuit of a tinsel-town bubble which gives an instant buzz and titillation, they would be greatly embarrassed and, one would hope, repentant.

The real excitement and wonder of the universe is that God created the primeval gases which collapsed into the Big Bang and eventually into the mind-bending galaxies and quasars which made our home on Planet Earth possible and marvelous.

It is this eternal Superstar alone who is the source not only of the universe, but every bit of life, love and excitement we enjoy: "for," as Paul observes, "in him we live and move and have our being" (Acts 17:28).

Why Me?

We have probably all wondered at one time or another, why seemingly bad things happen to good people, and good things to bad. Of course, who are we to judge who the bad people are; only God can see into a person's heart. However, the normal response for a person going through difficult times may be for them to ask, "Why me?" Faith and trust in God plays an important part in our ability to accept various unpleasant situations. Although we may not always understand the way things happen in this world, we should know that each of us is loved by God, and it is important that we rely on Him to know what is best for us. God has a plan for each of our lives, and someday when we are in paradise with Him, I am sure we will understand all of the mysteries of this life that we encounter. In the meantime, our faith will be strengthened by accepting that all things happen for the good of those who love and trust the Lord, and that He has everything under His control.

And this small and temporary trouble we suffer will bring us a tremendous and eternal glory, much greater than the trouble.
